Political Possibilities-Present Board of Selectmen Has Made Excellent Showing During the Year.

Politicians are commencing to feel the pulse of the voting public and lay their wires ahead for the turning on of the political current that will tell the story election day.

No one can question the efficiency of the honrable board of selectmen in any instance during the past year. The antire administration has been characterized by cleanliness and harmony. S. Armold Peckham, chairman of the board, stated Tuesday afternoon that he was a candidate for re-lection as first selectman, and that he would, if re-elected, endeavor to fulfil the duties of the office as any loyal lifelong republican should.

Ex-Selectman James M. Smith, whom Mr. Peckham defeated last year, is Ex-Selectman James M. Smith.whom Mr. Peckham defeated last year, is also a candidate for the first office in the board. It is understood that he has commenced electioneering and has already been up in North Vindham giving the glad hand to voters of that district.

As far as can be learned. Charles Larrabee, Jr., second selectman, is a candidate for re-election. He is sure to poll a big vote from South Windham, where he lives, and get his share in the city and other outlying districts.

George B. McCracken, the democratic and third member of the board, sates that he is not advancing his candidacy, but that he would not object to being elected as second member of the board.

There are at present a number of measures of vital importance to the interests of the town and city in the works, such as the hend issue, the High school project, and several minor matters with which Chairman Peckham is thereposity conversant and before is thoroughly conversant and befter qualified to handle to the best ad-vantage of the town than a man not familiar with them.

WEDDING.

Lewis-Fuller.

The marriage of Helen, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Fulier of Hampton, and Dr. Dwight M. Lewis of New Haven took place Thursday evening at 7 o'clock in the Congregational church at Hampton. It was the social event of the season and was the largest attended church and was the largest attended church wedding in the town in many years.
Guests were present from Boston, New York, Toledo, New Haven, Providence and Woonsocket, Hartford and Norwich, also a large number from nearby surrounding towns.
The church was globons. The church was elaborately decorated, the color scheme being green and
